Section D: Comprehension (MCQ) (5 marks)
Read the following passage carefully.

A hungry wolf had been watching a flock of sheep for several days. Stealing sheep was nothing new as she had been successful all this time. On that day, however, there was a difference. One of the two men keeping guard carried a rifle. The other, as usual, had a pole.

Hiding among the bushes, the wolf waited patiently for the right moment. 5
Everything should go according to plan. She would pounce on the smallest lamb and carry it quickly into the bushes. She would then have a fine meal for the day.

The wolf's vast experience had made her bolder and more confident. She was sure that she was going to get what she wanted. As she watched the sheep grazing in the meadow, she felt hungrier. Finally, after what seemed like an eternity, the moment arrived. The hungry wolf made a sudden dash at the flock. In her enthusiasm, it had slipped her mind that one of the men had a rifle. A shot rang out before she could get a little lamb. A bullet hit the wolf's leg, paralysing her. 10

The two men immediately raised the alarm. Soon, several villagers rushed to the scene, armed with ropes, daggers and knives. As the wolf lay on the ground, she listened intently to the villagers as they discussed what to do with her. Some felt she should not be harmed further and be taken to the zoo. Others felt she should be killed. 15

The wolf did not expect her plan to fail. Bleeding profusely at the foot of a hill, she wished everything had gone smoothly that fateful day. If only she had remembered about the rifle! 20

A colony of frogs lived in a pond surrounded by a forest. They were worried about their safety and held a meeting one day.

"It's unbearable," said one frog. "The herons hunt us by day and the raccoons prey on us at night."

"Yes," said another. "We should demand that the herons leave the pond. Banish them first!" 5

All the frogs readily agreed. Their noisy gathering drew the attention of a heron who was resting nearby. She wanted to know who the frogs wanted to banish. When the frogs looked at her beak, which was like a sword for stabbing frogs, they trembled. The frogs quickly told her they wanted the raccoons to leave. On hearing that, the heron flew away. 10

The frogs now had to decide who would tell the raccoons to leave. The bullfrog, being the biggest, was instantly chosen. The bullfrog, however, was hesitant. After all, the raccoons were bigger than him.

The other frogs assured the bullfrog that they would go with him to meet the raccoons. They said, "We'll stick to you like your shadow!" 15

At twilight, the bullfrog asked the frogs again, "All of you are going to stand by me like my shadow, right?" The frogs nodded their heads vigorously.

Feeling confident now, the bullfrog hopped onto the shore and met the raccoons. There were four of them, a mother and her three kits (baby raccoons). The bullfrog bravely demanded that the raccoons leave the forest. The mother raccoon simply twitched her nose. The bullfrog repeated his demand, expecting the other frogs to back him up. However, there was only silence. He turned and saw, just before he was eaten, that he was the only frog there. 20
