At first, the mutineers took little notice of the three young boys, Charles, Joshua and Edward. While David was gathering and arming his band of mutineers, and even after he had seized the captain and bound him to the mast, Edward still slept on.

5 However, the captain's cry for help when he was first seized, reached Edward in his sleep. He dreamt that he was being attacked by a dog – the dog that had been his constant companion at home. The bark of the dog in his sleep gradually turned into a man's shout. That shout awakened Edward from his sleep. His bed was placed not far from the chest in which the weapons were kept. The 10 first thing that caught Edward's eyes when he opened them was a sailor standing guard near the chest. He was armed and was looking strangely at him.

"What's wrong?" asked Edward, seeing the sailor's unusual manner.

"The captain is wrong," replied the sailor, "and he is up on deck tied to the mast. There is a mutiny and David has taken charge of the ship."

15 Edward could not believe his ears.

"I'll go on deck too!" he exclaimed.

You can imagine Edward's surprise when he saw the captain with his arms bound tight against the mast. David was ordering other armed sailors to put a small boat in the sea. Five more sailors with guns were guarding a group of unarmed 20 men and threatening them with death if they did not do as they were told.

Then the truth flashed in Edward's mind. This really was a mutiny. David had seized the captain and was going to put him in a small boat. He was to be left to the mercy of the vast sea.

26. Edward did not see the beginning of the mutiny because _____.

- (1) he was fast asleep
- (2) the captain did not shout for help
- (3) he was dreaming about something
- (4) the mutineers did not take notice of the three boys

27. The captain cried for help because he _____.

- (1) was in danger of drowning
- (2) was being attacked by a dog
- (3) wanted his men to arm David
- (4) was captured by the members of his crew

28. The sailor was standing near the chest _____.

- (1) in order to stop Edward from going up the ladder
- (2) because Edward's bed was not far from the chest
- (3) in order to be near Edward's bed when he woke up
- (4) because the chest contained arms and needed guarding

29. The armed sailors were putting a small boat in the sea _____.

- (1) for David to escape
- (2) to abandon the captain
- (3) for the captain to sail home
- (4) to punish the group of unarmed men

30. The passage is about _____.

- (1) the danger of the vast sea
- (2) a violent quarrel which led to a fight
- (3) some sailors who rebelled against their captain
- (4) three young boys who helped their captain escape

On the day of the Opening Ceremony, Benson and the rest of his party were excited and anxious. Dressed in their spotless No. 1 ceremonial uniforms at the nearby F1 pit, they practised components _____ their march repeatedly as other performers were checking _____ their make-up or chatting with enthusiasm.

The skies _____ had been grey, threatening to dampen their spirits with a downpour. If the wind was strong and erratic, _____ would be difficult to keep the flag straight and neat-looking. If things got a little wet, the flag's fabric might slip from their gloves _____ their uniforms might end up crinkled.

Thankfully, the weather held _____, and when Benson's turn came, his arm swing was identical to his team-mates', as _____ his posture and rhythm. As the flag made its turn at the podium and moved up the steps, the wind direction was favourable and _____ action went as planned.

As the national anthem was played and the flag hoisted up, more than ever before, his heart rose _____ the awe-inspiring atmosphere, more than _____ he had previously marched at the National Stadium as part of the National Day contingent. For here, he was not only standing in front of his nation but _____ all the world, representing his country before an international audience. He was bearing _____ his country's flag. The moment moved him deeply. He realised that whatever the future held, he would always treasure this experience of having held a symbol of his nation's pride in his hands.

Section i: Comprehension Cloze (15 x 1m =15m)

Fill in each blank with a suitable word.

The powerful healing properties of plants, spices and fruits have been known for centuries. These foods can be used to _____ common ailments and injuries.

(51)

There is no need for _____ prescriptions. You will find most of these cheap feel-better remedies in your cupboards, or under the sink!

(52)

One of the most studied of all "kitchen cures" is the ginger. It has been _____ medicinally for centuries. The chemicals that _____ ginger its zesty taste appear to of the brain. Hence, to _____ travel sickness, take a one-centimetre slice of fresh root ginger at least 20 minutes before you get in the car or _____ a ferry.

(57)

Danish researchers report that ginger, _____ taken at the first sign of a headache, can reduce the symptoms significantly. The same chemical responsible

(58)

_____ reducing headache can also ease joint swelling in people with bone

problems. Doctors often _____ patients to take aspirin every other day because it helps to "thin" the blood. Ginger has similar effects but without the stomach upset often

(60)

C, the full recommended daily intake. The body uses vitamin C to boost immune cells that assist in wound-healing. If applied often _____ directly to age spots, lemon juice can (64)
even fade ageing marks.

The last but not least of common household ingredient is the vinegar. Vinegar can be used to relieve mosquito bites _____ neutralising the pain-causing substances that (65)
get into the skin. Some people recommend soothing a sore throat by gargling with a tablespoon of vinegar in a glass of warm water. Others make a cough syrup by combining equal amounts of honey and vinegar.

Section K: Comprehension Open-ended (10 x 2m = 20m)

Read the passage below carefully and answer questions 71 to 80:

Peter and Mary could see a motorcycle coming towards them with its headlights switched on. The motorcycle stopped in front of them and the tall rider alighted from his vehicle and walked towards Peter with long strides. As the stranger approached the car, both of them felt instinctively that there might be danger.

5 "How much money do you have with you?" Mary asked Peter.

"500 dollars. Why?" Peter asked.

"I sense we might need it to get out of this trouble."

10 Peter sensed that the stranger approaching them was perhaps looking for a chance to extract money for his help in changing the tyre. He was properly dressed and protected from the weather. He was a tall man in his mid-thirties with a longish face which did not inspire immediate confidence. In fact, a hint of impending extortion. As Peter's thoughts were whirling in his mind, the stranger approached him on the side of his window and knocked. Peter wound down the window and the man spoke, "Do you need any help?" After Peter had replied that he indeed needed help changing his punctured tyre, the man said, "Can you come out and let me see whether I can help?"

15 Peter took a look at Mary before he slowly opened the door and followed the man to the back of the car. The moment Peter stepped out, he was drenched right through, as he had no other protection. But that was the least of his worries. He was prepared to accept the wet and the cold, if only the puncture could be repaired, and he was prepared to part with the 500 dollars in his pocket and be on his way.

20 These thoughts were running through his head as he accompanied the stranger to open the car boot. The stranger retrieved the tools from the boot and removed the spare tyre. With great confidence, he moved this to the front of the car and laid it down on the road as he stooped down to remove the punctured tyre. As he did so, wild thoughts flew through Peter's head. He was still full of apprehension, and his mind quickly raced to how he could possibly counteract any demands of the stranger after he had removed the tyre. It was surprising that he had made no mention of any cost or money for his services in this bad weather.

30 The stranger worked quietly and efficiently, and did not even ask Peter to assist him in any way. Within a short while, he single-handedly removed the old tyre and replaced it with the spare one. Following this, the stranger returned the punctured tyre to the boot. At this point, Peter approached the stranger and thanked him profusely, and asked him how much he should pay.

35 With a quizzical look, the stranger said with a tone of some disappointment, "No. How can I charge anything? It's only natural to help someone in trouble." By this time, the downpour had eased considerably, and Peter could look straight at his face. He could now make out the stranger's dark eyes and lean features. He could see from his eyes that the stranger had sensed his apprehension all along. In that instant, the stranger reached around his neck and took out a chain with a claw at the end, and placed it around Peter's neck. It was smooth and glossy, and a tiny hole had been punctured at both ends of the claw to string a tiny but firm chain. Peter protested vigorously, and reached into his pocket to pull out the 500 dollars, now all wet.

The stranger pushed away Peter's hand and said, "No, I will not accept any payment. I give this tiger's claw for your protection, and hope you have a safe journey home." So saying, he strode off towards his motorcycle without a word. He revved up his engine and waved his hand as he sped off.

Peter stood silently in the drizzle, and fell down on the ground weeping. He felt an uncontrollable sense of gratitude towards the stranger who had come so bravely and speedily to his help in his time of need. Tears flowed down Peter's cheeks, as he stood there for a while, quite oblivious to the drizzle.
